

Co-ordinating Committee for International D. H. Lawrence Conferences (CCILC)

The CCILC, established in June 1993 in Ottawa, Canada, at the 5th International D. H. Lawrence Conference, is the international body charged with authorizing international Lawrence conferences every 2-4 years. As constituted in 1993, with John Worthen as the first chair (President), its role was “to ensure the orderly and continuous planning of international conferences on the work of D. H. Lawrence.” These conferences were “to nurture the ongoing international conversation about Lawrence's work” and to occur if possible “in places Lawrence himself lived and worked.” CCILC members were to represent their constituencies and disseminate information about upcoming conferences. CCILC convenes at each international DHL conference to authorize a proposal for the next conference.

No record exists of a formal CCILC constitution ever being written, revised, or ratified. The CCILC was formally re-constituted before the 12th International D. H. Lawrence Conference in Sydney, at which it authorized a proposal for the 13th International DHL Conference in 2014 (Gargnano). Those listed below--serving from 2011-2014--also reviewed proposals for the 14th International DHL Conference, giving comments via email or in person during the CCILC meeting in Gargnano, at which a proposal for London 2017 was authorized.

The membership of CCILC (representing 20 countries in 2011-14) is as follows:

- (1) Ex-officio: representatives of duly constituted Lawrence societies (at present, Britain, Japan, Korea, North America, Australia), of the DHL Centre at Nottingham University, and of any DHL societies that might be established in future; editors of Lawrence journals--including the Journal of D. H. Lawrence Studies (Britain), the D. H. Lawrence Review (North America), Études Lawrenciennes (France), and D. H. Lawrence Studies (Korea); executive directors of immediately past and immediately forthcoming international D. H. Lawrence conferences authorized by CCILC;
- (2) Representatives (elected or appointed by the Chair) from countries not covered by (1).
